Introduction

The Caribbean Advanced Proficiency Examination (CAPE[®]) is designed to provide certification of the academic, vocational and technical achievement of students in the Caribbean who, having completed a minimum of five years of secondary education, wish to further their studies. The examinations address the skills and knowledge acquired by students under a flexible and articulated system where subjects are organised in 1-Unit or 2-Unit courses with each Unit containing three Modules. Subjects examined under CAPE[®] may be studied concurrently or singly.

The Caribbean Examinations Council offers three types of certification at the CAPE[®] level. The first is the award of a certificate showing each CAPE[®] Unit completed. The second is the CAPE[®] Diploma, awarded to candidates who have satisfactorily completed at least six Units, including Caribbean Studies. The third is the CXC[®] Associate Degree, awarded for the satisfactory completion of a prescribed cluster of ten CAPE[®] Units including Caribbean Studies, Communication Studies and Integrated Mathematics. Integrated Mathematics is not a requirement for the CXC[®] Associate Degree in Mathematics. The complete list of Associate Degrees may be found in the CXC[®] Associate Degree Handbook.

For the CAPE[®] Diploma and the CXC[®] Associate Degree, candidates must complete the cluster of required Units within a maximum period of five years. To be eligible for a CXC[®] Associate Degree, the educational institution presenting the candidates for the award, must select the Associate Degree of choice at the time of registration at the sitting (year) the candidates are expected to qualify for the award. Candidates will not be awarded an Associate Degree for which they were not registered.

Communication Studies Syllabus

♦ RATIONALE

“Communication works for those who work at it” (John Powell, 2015). For the 21st century, a critical factor in the mastery of our physical and social environment is our ability to communicate with ourselves and others, thoughts, emotions, ideas, and attitude. The principles of Communication Studies transcend time and are essential to all academic disciplines and life skills. The subject builds students’ awareness of the centrality of language to the effective functioning of human beings and facilitates their ability to operate in the Caribbean linguistic environment and beyond. It also provides students with the confidence to respond appropriately and creatively to the implied challenges of that environment through the development of their language awareness and communicative competencies.

The fact that communication is a complex set of processes to which language is central informs this programme of study. The focus of language in this context emphasises its nature as both a marker of personal, cultural and national identity, and as an instrument of social and political interaction. Thus, students will gain an informed sense of their own language heritage, in addition to recognition of the cultural diversity of the Caribbean. They will have attained the attributes of the Ideal Caribbean Person as outlined in The Caribbean Education Strategy (2000). Such a person should be “emotionally secure with a high level of self-confidence and self-esteem; see ethnic, religious, and other diversity as a source of potential strength and richness; have a strong appreciation of family and kinship values, community, cohesion, and moral issues including responsibility for and accountability to self and community. [He/she will exhibit] an informed respect for the cultural heritage [of the region]; demonstrate multiple literacies, independent and critical thinking; question the beliefs and practices of past and present; demonstrate a positive work ethic; value and display the creative imagination in its various manifestations and nurture its development in the economic and entrepreneurial spheres and in all other areas of life”.

The syllabus integrates, enhances, deepens, and broadens language skills and awareness. It focuses primarily on the development of advanced competencies in Standard English, particularly standard English of their respective territories. At the same time, it attempts to develop an appreciation of the linguistic diversity of the Caribbean. This comprises the small island states, the Greater and Lesser Antilles, all the other islands in the Caribbean Sea (including the Turks and Caicos Islands, the Bahamas, the Cayman Islands, islands of the Francophone Caribbean and the islands of the Netherlands Antilles) and Belize, Suriname, Guyana, and Cayenne. In addition, it explores the implications of this diversity for social, cultural, and economic transactions. Students will also have acquired various skills, including enquiry, as defined in the UNESCO Pillars of Learning – to know, to do, to live together, to be and to transform oneself and society. These will enable them to succeed in their academic careers and the world of work and will further foster the exploration and development of their Caribbean identities.

The syllabus emphasises the wider framework of communication principles, systems and processes within which language use has context, achieves coherence, and is enhanced. The role of technology and research in the success or failure of communication is also underscored.

In summary, a teaching programme based on this syllabus must be characterised by the following:

1. consideration of linguistic and non-linguistic communication, so that the dynamics of any communicative act can be clarified;
2. provision of authentic, learner-centred experiences for students to be exposed to the dynamic range of communicative contexts and to appreciate how language functions as an instrument of educational, social, personal, vocational and spiritual development. Particularly, it must provide opportunities for students to explore, in theory and practice, the use of register, code and style in relevant social contexts;
3. commitment to helping students understand the relationship between language, society and Identity and to developing an awareness of language variety and diversity;
4. consideration of the impact of digital media and technological advances on communication and the implications of this impact for language evolution, choice and structure;
5. facilitation and enhancement of students' ability to gather and process information using a variety of modes, research skills and strategies; and,
6. facilitation and enhancement of students' own critical, creative and aesthetic responses to, and production of, language.

◆ AIMS

This syllabus aims to:

1. develop an understanding of the nature of language and its various functions in social, aesthetic, work-related and other contexts;
2. develop an appreciation of speaking, reading, listening and writing as mental and social processes for enhancing communication;
3. enable students to use different languages and language varieties (dialects and registers) accurately, appropriately and effectively in a range of contexts to encode/produce and decode communicative messages;
4. provide an understanding of the different technological resources and their impact on communication;
5. develop an appreciation of the role of language in shaping Caribbean cultural identity at the individual and communal levels;
6. develop an appreciation of the complex process of communication and its effective use within a wide range of discourse contexts;
7. guide students in the use of strategies appropriate to producing and interpreting specific discourses for various contexts; and,
8. guide students in the avoidance of plagiarism in research by promoting the ethical use of digital and non-digital sources of information.

◆ SKILLS AND ABILITIES TO BE ASSESSED

The skills that students are expected to have developed on completion of the syllabus have been grouped under four main headings:

1. Comprehension;
2. Language Use, Attitudes and Awareness;
3. Expression; and,
4. Organisation of Content.

Comprehension

The ability to understand and respond appropriately to written, oral and visual communication from a variety of sources.

Language Use, Attitudes and Awareness

The ability to understand and appreciate different attitudes to language, discuss its various features and roles in Caribbean societies and globally and use it appropriately in different communication contexts.

Expression

The ability to speak and write the standard English of their respective territories with effectiveness, precision, clarity and fluency.

Organisation of Content

The ability to structure content through the effective use of introductions and conclusions, coherence, and cohesion through the use of thesis, topic sentences and supporting details, transitions, linking paragraphs, streamlining, formatting and strategies and techniques appropriate for various discourses.

◆ PREREQUISITES OF THE SYLLABUS

The ability to express personal opinions and factual information clearly, demonstrating logical sequencing and appropriate English registers up to the level indicated by the Caribbean Secondary Education Certificate (CSEC®) English A General Proficiency syllabus or an equivalent syllabus.

◆ STRUCTURE OF THE SYLLABUS

This syllabus requires 150 hours. It consists of three Modules, each requiring 50 hours. While the Modules are presented in a linear manner, it must be emphasised that any Module may be studied first, and aspects of Modules may be studied concurrently, constrained only by the capacity of educational institutions and by students' needs and interests.

- | | | |
|----------|---|---|
| Module 1 | - | Gathering, Organising and Processing Information |
| Module 2 | - | Language and Community |
| Module 3 | - | Speaking and Writing |

◆ APPROACHES TO TEACHING THE SYLLABUS

Teachers of this syllabus will be leading students' discovery and development of their unique Caribbean linguistic identity within the context of local, regional, and international environments. They will play a crucial role in enhancing students' facility in, and manipulation of the standard English of their respective territories for the five modes of language communication: listening, speaking, reading, writing, and visually representing, complementing the communicative skills they have developed in their Creole or Creole-influenced vernacular languages.

These teachers will find it useful to employ an integrated approach to teaching this syllabus. The Modules enable students to explore the connections between the various areas and facilitate communicative teaching. For example, effective formal speaking and writing both require the selection and mastery of a language variety, register and style in accordance with established standards of appropriateness. Therefore, a lesson on formality would be expected to integrate the modes of speaking and writing, with listening and reading stimuli. In this case, relevant specific objectives from across the three Modules could be addressed simultaneously.

Teachers of Communication Studies should ideally hold a degree with an emphasis in areas such as English Language education, linguistics, literacies, communication, or a related discipline and have undergone training that formally qualifies them to teach in the four main areas of knowledge and skills: comprehension, language use, attitudes and awareness, expression, and organisation of content. They should be routinely professional, resourceful, and reflective in their overall approach, especially when it comes to providing resources for their students and expanding their own knowledge. The list of resources at the end of each Module is not exhaustive and should serve only as a guide. Teachers should be prepared to take the initiative to access information from a variety of other reliable sources to complement the resources provided by their schools and Ministries of Education.

◆ MODULE 1: GATHERING, ORGANISING AND PROCESSING INFORMATION

GENERAL OBJECTIVES

On completion of this Module, students should demonstrate:

1. knowledge of the correct and appropriate use of the structures of the standard English of their respective territories;
2. an understanding of informative and persuasive written and spoken communication, taking into consideration its form, content and the context in which it is presented or constructed;
3. the application of comprehension, analytical and critical evaluation skills to a wide range of oral and written material;
4. competence in organising and presenting oral and written communication with accuracy, clarity and fluency;
5. competence in the use of traditional and evolving technologies and resources for the purpose of researching, collecting, producing and disseminating information; and,
6. competence in applying research principles and techniques to gather and make sense of information.

MODULE 1: GATHERING, ORGANISING AND PROCESSING INFORMATION (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

CONTENT

Students should be able to:

9. use the appropriate data collection methods and instruments for research purposes;

- (a) Interviews (online, face to face, telephone), and interview schedules.
- (b) Focus groups and interview schedules.
- (c) Surveys and questionnaires (online, face to face, telephone, mail).
- (d) Observation and observation schedules and checklists.
- (e) Document analysis.

10. apply the different levels of comprehension to spoken and written material;

Comprehension

Levels: literal, interpretive, analytical, application, synthesis, evaluation.

11. write continuous prose and note-form summaries of specific types of written and spoken material;

Summary Skills

- (a) Note-taking and note-making.
- (b) Distinguishing main and subsidiary ideas.
- (c) Understanding logical linkages between ideas.
- (d) Formulating topic sentences and linking them to subsidiary ideas.
- (e) Sequencing.
- (f) Condensing.
- (g) Writing outlines.
- (h) Writing continuous prose summaries.
- (i) Editing drafts (peer-evaluation and self-evaluation).

MODULE 1: GATHERING, ORGANISING AND PROCESSING INFORMATION (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

CONTENT

Students should be able to:

12. evaluate primary and secondary sources;

Current Issues: Evaluating Sources

- (a) Definition and examples of primary and secondary sources.
- (b) Criteria for evaluating sources, for example, purpose, currency, sufficiency, and applicability of these sources of information.

13. assess the factors that impact the credibility, reliability, and validity of primary and secondary sources;

- (a) Defining key concepts (authority, credibility, reliability, validity, bias, fact, opinion):
 - (i) giving examples and non examples; and,
 - (ii) comparing and contrasting concepts.
- (b) Factors include but are not limited to purpose, currency, sufficiency, and applicability.

14. assess the suitability of channel and medium;

Defining key concepts (channel and medium).

Suitability of channel and medium based on factors such as purpose, appropriateness, availability, accessibility.

15. gather information about current issues;

Sourcing information:

- (a) locating primary and secondary sources;
- (b) choosing from among sources;
- (c) determining the appropriateness of data collection methods; and,
- (d) summarising the content of sources.

MODULE 1: GATHERING, ORGANISING AND PROCESSING INFORMATION (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

CONTENT

Students should be able to:

16. evaluate information about current issues;

Current Issues: Evaluating Sources

Evaluating the credibility, reliability, and validity of sources:

- (a) author and speaker (expertise, authority, perspective, personal, social, cultural and political biases);
- (b) context (social and historical);
- (c) text (factual accuracy, logical structure, cogency, reliable sources, fake news, gas lighting, propaganda, conspiracy theories); and,
- (d) rhetorical appeals (logos, kairos, ethos, pathos).

17. justify the selection of research design, sources of information and methods of data collection; and,

Type(s) of research design(s) – advantages and disadvantages.

Reasons for selection of – research design, sources of information, data collection methods and instruments.

18. present a portfolio of research findings using the appropriately structured oral and written forms.

Portfolio presentation (oral and written)

- (a) Introductions and conclusions.
- (b) Guidelines for effective delivery of oral presentations.
- (c) Use of organisational strategies and language techniques.
- (d) Logical linkages (linkages within and between paragraphs, for example, the use of transitions and connectives like 'although', 'therefore', and 'however'; variation of sentence structure to achieve coherence).

MODULE 1: GATHERING, ORGANISING AND PROCESSING INFORMATION (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

CONTENT

Students should be able to:

- (e) Formatting (selecting and using particular styles of arrangement correctly, for example, appropriate headings and sequences of headings).
- (f) Revising and editing drafts (via conferencing, peer-evaluation, self-evaluation).
- (g) Identifying and addressing plagiarism.
- (h) Presenting findings in graphic form, where applicable.

Suggested Teaching and Learning Activities

To facilitate students' attainment of the objectives in Module 1, teachers are advised to engage students in the following teaching and learning activities.

1. Engage students in the development of general study skills as follows:
 - (a) scheduling the time to work;
 - (b) setting purposes for general and specific reading;
 - (c) defining the elements of listening and reading;
 - (d) systematically recording salient information from sources consulted; and,
 - (e) working collaboratively in groups.
2. Let students keep a log of their communication activities at school or at home for a 24-hour period during the week. They should record the number of minutes spent on the four main language skills: reading, writing, speaking, and listening, each day. They should then make a pie chart showing the percentage of time spent on each type of communication skill.

Have follow-up discussion, focusing on the implications of the distribution with regard to the student's own individual communication style and interactive environment relations, as well as broad conclusions that may be drawn about these four communication acts in general.
3. Have students listen to a five-minute segment of a podcast or a radio news programme. Let them recall and list the main items. Review the list.

MODULE 1: GATHERING, ORGANISING AND PROCESSING INFORMATION (cont'd)

4. Have students watch a five-minute segment of a televised or Web-based news programme and recall as much of the information as possible.
5. Discuss the difference between listening only (Activity 3) and listening with reinforcement from visual cues (Activity 2). This activity can be linked with developing speech skills.
6. Let students view a video recording (15-20 minutes) of a discussion or conversation on television or the internet with three or four participants. Then let them answer in writing the following questions which should be distributed to each student before viewing. (Recording can be sourced from local television stations, the Government Information Service or the Web.)
 - (a) How did participants help develop ideas and supply details?
 - (b) What were the differences in points of view?
 - (c) What aspects of the topics were neglected?
 - (d) What elements of good argument or bias or fallacy did you identify? How did these affect the conversation?
 - (e) Did the use of elements such as lighting and set arrangement affect your response to the overall presentation? This can be linked with developing speech skills.
7.
 - (a) Have students listen:
 - (i) to stories that their peers tell and retell them in the standard English of their respective territories and Caribbean English Creole (CEC) variety. Start by identifying tellers and re-tellers beforehand;
 - (ii) for facts and events and report same in the standard English of their respective territories and CEC. Start by identifying tellers and re-tellers beforehand;
 - (iii) for main ideas and supporting details and report them in the standard English of their respective territories and CEC (focusing first on reporting one or the other, then on reporting both together). Start by identifying reporters beforehand; and,
 - (iv) for strategies and devices that support themes, topics, events and purposes in passages shaped in different types of genre/discourse and report same in the standard English of their respective territories and CEC. Start by identifying reporters beforehand.
 - (b) Model responses for the students and always display an attitude of encouragement.
 - (c) Target as many students as possible at different points of the classroom.

MODULE 1: GATHERING, ORGANISING AND PROCESSING INFORMATION (cont'd)

8. Have students select an experience or a story to tell the class. Give them guiding principles for the story:

- (a) Select an interesting story or incident.
- (b) Ensure the story or incident has an element of surprise.
- (c) Organise stages in the story or incident for maximum interest.
- (d) Provide information on where, when, who, what, why, how.
- (e) End the story or incident with the high point.

Students in the audience will listen in order to discuss the evaluation points below:

- (i) Was the story told in such a way that you felt you were sharing the experience?
- (ii) Was the story told in a logical order?
- (iii) How did the speaker maintain suspense?
- (iv) Was the story dramatised with suitable tone, gestures and illustrative materials?
- (v) In what way did the speaker's voice add to the interest of the story or experience?

9. Have students select two newspaper/social media articles on a similar issue and evaluate them to respond to the following in small groups:

- (a) Which statements were facts? Which ones were opinions? What criteria did you use to decide between fact and opinion?
- (b) What made the report interesting?
- (c) How can you use the information given?
- (d) How did you react to new or different ideas?
- (e) Was the report clear, concise, and well organised? Explain.
- (f) What new facts or points of view did you learn from the report?

N.B. This can be integrated with the teaching of summary and note-taking skills. This activity also facilitates the teaching of organisational skills in writing (Module 3).

MODULE 1: GATHERING, ORGANISING AND PROCESSING INFORMATION (cont'd)

10. Engage students in panel discussions. These can be linked to portfolio development where students researching similar topics can form panels to present points of view and be questioned by the class.
11. Play the rebuttal game: Class is divided into two groups. A debatable topic is chosen and each group undertakes to argue for or against. One student makes a point and a student from the opposing side rebuts, using the opponent's point to build his or her argument, and so on, until the topic is exhausted. This can also be used as an introduction to argumentative writing (Module 3).
12. Have students practise mock interviews or interview each other in small groups as a starter for a written piece.
13. Have students construct different types of comprehension questions on specific passages. They can do this in groups and administer "tests" to each other. Ensure that students are aware that their questions should address the various levels of comprehension by exploring question-and-answer relationships.
14. Organise library/electronic database orientation sessions for students to ensure that they understand how to use the library/electronic database resources.
15. Have students select samples of different types of writing and discuss (in groups) variation in style, usage and literary devices.
16. Have students evaluate the reliability and validity of the different types of information gathered.

◆ MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY

GENERAL OBJECTIVES

On completion of this Module, students should:

1. demonstrate knowledge of the structures of the standard English of their respective territories and of an English-related Creole;
2. demonstrate proficiency in the use of structures of the standard English of their respective territories;
3. understand informative and persuasive written and spoken communication, taking into consideration the form, content and context in which it is presented or constructed;
4. show an awareness of the nature and characteristics of language and its roles in society, particularly in the Caribbean;
5. understand the salient features of the interactions among communication technologies, language and society;
6. appreciate the significance of communication technologies in cultural interaction/transmission and language change; and,
7. appreciate the diversity of languages and cultures of the Caribbean including those of the pre-Columbian era.

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

CONTENT

Students should be able to:

1. communicate with effective control of the grammar, vocabulary, mechanics and discourse conventions of the standard English of their respective territories;

Expression (oral and written)

- (a) Grammar and mechanics;
- (b) Usage (such as idiomatic expressions, colloquialisms, argots, cliches, jargon and slang);
- (c) Word choice/vocabulary;
- (d) Spelling;
- (e) Punctuation;
- (f) Pronunciation;
- (g) Enunciation; and,

MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

Students should be able to:

2. discuss the concept of language;

3. differentiate among types of language and varieties of the same language;

CONTENT

(h) Adherence to stylistic/contextual norms of appropriateness (levels of formality, register and situation).

Defining Language (Spoken and Sign)

(a) Characteristics of language – language as:

(i) symbolic;

(ii) systematic;

(iii) maturational;

(iv) non-instinctive (naturally acquired); and,

(v) dynamic.

(b) Uniquely associated with human.

(c) Differentiation between 'language' (generic) and 'a language' (individual).

(d) Purposes of language, such as persuading, questioning, directing, providing aesthetic pleasure, informing.

(e) Functions of language: referential (for identification), poetic (expressive/reflective), emotive (reflective), conative (for desires, wishes, intentions), phatic (to establish social bonds), metalingual/metalinguistic (use of language to talk about language).

(a) Types of language: Creole and Non-Creole.

Creole (the set of native-speaker varieties which have their beginnings in situations of contact where groups of people do not share a common language and must communicate with each other, for example, Jamaican, Sranan, Papiamentu).

MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

Students should be able to:

CONTENT

Non-Creole (any language that is not known to have arisen as a Creole, for example, English, Hindi, Mandarin, Warrau).

- (b) Definitions of language-related concepts: standard, dialect, register, indigenous language, mother tongue/language.

Dialect (any variety of a language used by a particular geographic, social or cultural subgroup). Some languages, such as English, have well-known dialects, such as Yorkshire English and Cockney English. Geographical dialects of English are also found in the Caribbean (for example, Belizean English, Grenadian English, Guyanese English and Trinidad and Tobago English).

Hindustani and Bhojpuri are considered dialects of Hindi. In Creole languages as well, regional, social and cultural dialects exist (see glossary for further clarification).

Register (the levels of formality and range of language use in relation to a communication context, for example, formal, frozen, casual, consultative, intimate and private).

Standard (the dialect, often having a written form, used for education and other formal or official purposes).

Indigenous language (a language born in the Caribbean Archipelago, for example, Lokojan, Garifuna, Makushi, Carib, Kekchi).

MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

CONTENT

Students should be able to:

Mother tongue/language (the language a person first learns to speak at home during childhood. The language of the family in which you grow up).

- (c) Language variety (a specific form of a language used in response to various influences, for example, social (age, education, occupation, gender) geographic (international, regional, national, rural and urban).

4. identify the salient features of at least one English-based Creole or Creole-influenced vernacular (in their territory or any other territory) which make it different from standard English;

Some Salient Features of English-based Creole Languages

The following tables present some salient characteristics of English-based Creoles on the levels of grammar, phonology, and vocabulary, comparing them with their counterparts in standard English. Some English-based Creoles have established writing systems (such as Jamaican and Guyanese/Creolese) while for many others writing systems are still emerging. Therefore, this syllabus uses the English spelling system to represent English-based Creole sounds and words, making modifications to the system to represent English-based Creoles.

MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY (cont'd)

GRAMMAR
Feature	English-based Creole	Standard English
Pluralisation	Various ways of expressing plurality – for example, simple plural dem “Di boy dem”; zero plural marking of generic nouns – for example, “Cow give milk”; zero plural marking with numbers or quantifiers – for example, ten bag/some bag; reduplication – for example, buk buk buk.	Plurality marked mostly with the suffix –s for example, the boys; cows give milk; ten bags/some bags, a lot of books.
Past tense	Non-stative verbs unmarked for simple past tense, while statives have preverbal markers – for example, mi cook wan vs mi did want wan.	Non-stative and stative verbs marked – I cooked one vs I wanted one.
Other verb-related information (aspect, mood)	Expressed as free preverbal morphemes – for example, progressive “Him a kom”; habitual aspect “He doz lov roti”.	Sometimes expressed as bound morphemes – for example, progressive “He is coming”; habitual aspect “He loves roti”.
Prepositions	a or null preposition used interchangeably for ‘to’ and ‘at’ – for example, John did go (a) school; John de (a) school.	‘To’ and ‘at’ not interchangeable – for example, John went to school; John is at school.
Serial verb constructions	Verbs are allowed in a series – for example, run go give yu mada dis.	Verbs generally not allowed in a series – for example, give this to your mother.
Complementizer in reported speech	Use of ‘say’ – for example, mi hear se Pat de ya.	Use of that – I heard that Pat is here.
Word order for interrogatives and declaratives	No inversion or insertions in questions – for example, Him hungry. vs Him hungry?	Inversion or insertions in questions making them distinct from statements – for example, He is hungry. vs Is he hungry?
Use of copula (linking word)	Use of equative a – for example, Mi a wahn teacher; Use of null copula with adjectival predicates/stative verbs – for example, Shi sick; Use of locative de – for example, Him de (a) school.	Use of the verb “to be” – for example, I am a teacher; She is sick; He is at school.
Double negative construction	Multiple negatives are allowed – for example, mi no want notn fram nobadi.	Multiple negative items not allowed – for example, I do not want anything from anyone.
Pronouns	Invariable pronouns for nominative, accusative and possessive case – for example, Him give him him book.	Marked case difference on pronouns – for example, he gave him his book.

MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY (cont'd)

PHONOLOGY
Feature/Processes	English-based Creole	Standard English
Vowels	Sometimes fewer vowel distinctions – for example, same vowel sound in bag /bag/, all /aal/, above /abov/	More vowel distinctions – for example, different vowel sounds in bag /bæg/, all /ɔl/, above /əbov/
Dental fricatives	Voiced <th> realized as /d/, voiceless <th> realized as /t/ - for example, dey, moder, tin, evriting.	Voiced and voiceless <th> pronounced as fricatives – for example, they, mother, thin, everything.
Hypercorrection	/h/ is added or dropped – for example, hegg, ed.	/h/ is not hypercorrected – for example, egg, head.
Palatalization	Insertion of a semi-vowel after /k/ and /g/ before /a/ – for example, kyaar, gyarden.	Semi-vowel insertion optional – for example, /ga:rdn/ ~ gyaardn.
Consonant clusters	Many consonant clusters are reduced – for example, fren, sinake.	Many consonant clusters are not reduced – for example, friend, snake.
Final consonants	Some final consonants are deleted – for example, bou, wa.	Final consonants are pronounced – for example, about, what.
Unstressed syllable	Some unstressed syllables are deleted – for example, because → cause, about → bout.	Unstressed syllables pronounced – for example, because, about.

It should be noted that some of the English Creole characteristics are at times carried over into Standard English.

VOCABULARY
Feature	English-based Creole	Standard English
Same form but different functions	“Does” used in English-based Creoles to mark habitual aspect, for example, Mi doz talk to he sometime.	“Does” is the third person singular present tense of the verb “do”.
Shared word but different meanings	Miserable – ill tempered; ignorant – ill-tempered.	Miserable – wretched; ignorant – lacking knowledge.
Non-English words in Creoles	Not all words in English-based Creoles are from English – for example, pikni (< Portuguese), nyam, poto-poto (< African languages), bazodi (< French Creole), aloo (< Hindi).	English equivalents for non-English words – for example, child, eat, wet mud, astonished, potato.

MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY (cont'd)

VOCABULARY
Feature	English-based Creole	Standard English
Semantic transparency of some words referring to body-parts and body fluids	Words for some body-parts and body fluids are semantically transparent – for example, nose-hole, eye-water, hand-middle, mouth water.	The equivalent words for body-parts and body fluids are not semantically transparent – for example,. nostril, tears, palm, saliva.
Idioms	Idioms not derived from English – for example, cut eye; walk with; spin top in mud; hit someone for six; hard ears.	Equivalents for non-English idioms – for example, a look of anger, disapproval, envy; bring along; waste time; prevail over someone; stubborn.
Word-formation strategies	Compounding – bread man; Reduplication – priti priti.	Equivalents – baker, colourful/very pretty.

MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

CONTENT

Students should be able to:

5. explain the challenges faced by the Creole or the Creole-influenced vernacular speaker in learning standard English;

Challenges include:

- (a) English is taught as if it is a first language;
- (b) prejudice against Creoles and Creole speakers;
- (c) negative attitudes and stereotypes;
- (d) confusion caused by similarities and overlaps in the structure and vocabulary of English and English-based Creoles;
- (e) speakers of Creoles believe they are speaking English because they live in a country where English is an official language;
- (f) availability of sufficient models of English speakers; and,
- (g) fear of making mistakes and possible consequences.

6. evaluate the role of language in Caribbean identity;

Roles of language in Caribbean identity, such as:

- (a) an expression of culture as well as an avenue for cultural expression;
- (b) demarcation of social and regional communities;
- (c) building of community and regional integration through shared characteristics; and,
- (d) transmission of culture within and across generations and cultural borders.

MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

Students should be able to:

7. discuss the social, political, ethical and psychological roles of language in human societies;

CONTENT

Language in Society

Social, political, ethical and psychological roles of language, for example, the use of language to:

- (a) discriminate against others, alienate, ridicule, to save or lose face, mark social biases;
- (b) assert authority, mark identity, mark solidarity, make linkages, signal protests, promote cultural awareness;
- (c) assign users to national, regional, international, social, gender, ethnic and other sub-groups; and,
- (d) reveal attitudes to language, such as:
 - (i) pride in one's use of the language and defending the use of the language by self and others;
 - (ii) shame reflected in silence, disparaging the use of language, convergence and divergence;
 - (iii) comfort and confidence in the use of the language by self and others;
 - (iv) shyness in the use of language;
 - (v) disappointment and anger; and,
 - (vi) indifference.

MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

Students should be able to:

8. assess the use of registers, dialects and other aspects of language in various types of interactive settings; and,
9. assess the impact of technological advances on communication.

CONTENT

Language in Society

Assessment based on factors such as audience, message, purpose, occasion, gender, age, and related communicative behaviours.

Technology, Culture and Communication

- (a) Developments in communication technology, such as:
 - (i) Printed material: books, letters, newspapers, memos;
 - (ii) Telegram, telephone, facsimile, pager, radio and television;
 - (iii) Computer, cellular phone, tablets, phablet; and,
 - (iv) New media devices and platforms (such as satellite radio, smart television, smart phones, tele/video-conferencing, Internet, browsers and search engines), digital and social networking tools (such as YouTube®, Twitter®, Facebook®, WhatsApp®, Instagram®, TikTok®).
- (b) The importance of traditional and digital media technologies in documenting Caribbean linguistic practices, and in documenting and revitalizing endangered languages and language varieties.

MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

Students should be able to:

CONTENT

- (c) Positive and negative impacts of technological advances:
 - (i) cost;
 - (ii) speed of dissemination;
 - (iii) access;
 - (iv) production volume; and,
 - (v) need for technical expertise.
- (d) Problems associated with the use of technology in communication: limited or no access to broadband coverage and devices; digital inequity; plagiarism; increased dissemination of and access to fake news, propaganda and conspiracy theories.
- (e) The influence of technology on cultural communication practices in the region.
- (f) The use of technology to create digital content which may be inappropriate for specific contexts including use of emoji(s), text message spelling, inappropriate digital identifiers and email addresses, for example, sexybody@lookingajob.com.

MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY (cont'd)

Suggested Teaching and Learning Activities

To facilitate students' attainment of the objectives in Module 2, teachers are advised to engage students in the following teaching and learning activities.

1. Have students examine the possible interpretations of the word 'communicate'. They should provide examples such as:
 - (a) dark clouds communicate the possibility of rain;
 - (b) aspects of body language communicate different emotional states; and,
 - (c) music may communicate different messages about mental states (joy, sadness).
2. Have students:
 - (a) compare any (or all) of the above with human language. Discuss range, effectiveness, complexity, efficiency, economy and ability to deal with abstraction; and,
 - (b) identify areas of difference of form between human language and other kinds of communication. Deduce the formal characteristics of human language: verbal, symbolic, systematic (grammar, sound, meaning).
3. Have students upgrade the list of developments in communication technologies presented in Specific Objective 9 above.
4. Have students observe a game, show or event and prepare an oral or written report for (a) the class and (b) the principal. Have students discuss the differences in the level of language used and identify reasons for the differences.
5. Present students with copies of maps of the Caribbean. Ask them to name the territories. For homework they should be required to identify the official language used in each territory. Students should match the official language and the Creole language of the territory. (Some historical information may be necessary).
6. Prepare a list comparing words from the standard English of their respective territories and Creole or Creole-influenced vernacular words for the same item. Discuss the possible reasons for the differences in vocabulary and semantics. Use the various dialects of either to show that differences often may exist within specific versions of a language.
7. Have students do a project in which they differentiate the standard English of their respective territories from another Standard English.
8. Have students select passages or messages intended for different social levels. Engage in discussion around the appropriateness of the passages or messages for the different social levels.

MODULE 2: LANGUAGE AND COMMUNITY (cont'd)

9. Identify a passage which represents informal, conversational Creole (you may wish to transcribe a section of an audio recording from the suggested resources for Module 2). Have students (in groups so as to stimulate discussion) translate the passage to a formal, standard, written version of the standard English of their respective territories. Advise them to pay attention to:
- (a) vocabulary and semantics;
 - (b) grammar;
 - (c) sentence structure; and,
 - (d) idiomatic expressions.
- They may wish to underline the sections to be changed in the original and discuss their reasons.
10. Have students examine the local daily newspapers, newspaper archives and the Internet for debates on Creole and standard varieties of English. Students may be required to identify the basic positions taken and to:
- (a) evaluate them;
 - (b) support or reject them; and,
 - (c) present a summary of the major arguments.
11. Use a map of the world to identify territories in which English is one of the major languages. Students should discuss the notion of international language. Be sure to raise the question of use by international organisations, academic publishers and major news networks.
12. Encourage students to build a comparative list of terms used for flora and fauna in various territories of the region. Have students group territories on the basis of similarity of items.
13. Divide students into groups. Have each group identify and focus on new technological advancements in the home, school and workplace, for example, smart devices (cellular phone, tablet, television), social networking Internet sites and video conferencing tools. Each group should explain the varied uses of these “new” tools and their impact on the communication process.
14. Encourage students in small groups to (a) utilise modern forms of communication technologies to make class and portfolio presentations and (b) evaluate the effectiveness of the technology used in the presentation.
15. Have students use the Internet for research purposes and evaluate the reliability and validity of the sources and information gathered. Have students summarise the useful information gathered, taking care to avoid plagiarism.
16. Engage students in a debate or panel discussion on the value of the use of Creole in the communication process.
17. Have students create advertisements, short videos or digital stories about the value of Creole.
18. Have students start and maintain a class blog that focuses on the Creole languages of the region.

◆ MODULE 3: SPEAKING AND WRITING

GENERAL OBJECTIVES

On completion of this Module, students should:

1. demonstrate knowledge of the structures of the standard English of their respective territories;
2. demonstrate proficiency in the use of structures of the standard English of their respective territories;
3. show an understanding of informative and persuasive written and spoken communication, taking into consideration the form, content and context in which it is presented or constructed;
4. demonstrate the ability to produce different types of communication relevant and appropriate to a specific target audience;
5. know the communication process and the major forms of communication (oral, written, non-verbal);
6. appreciate the appropriateness of the forms of communication in various contexts;
7. demonstrate the ability to express themselves in speech and writing with precision, accuracy, clarity and fluency;
8. show competence in organizing, evaluating and customising oral and written communication for a given scenario;
9. show competence in the use of receptive skills to collect information to be used in written and spoken communication;
10. show competence in the use of rhetorical appeals and strategies in message creation for specific target audiences;
11. demonstrate the ability to use different media, channels and technologies appropriately to achieve effective communication in specific contexts; and,
12. appreciate the impact of technology on the communication process.

MODULE 3: SPEAKING AND WRITING (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

CONTENT

Students should be able to:

1. communicate with effective control of the grammar, vocabulary, mechanics and discourse conventions of the standard English of their respective territories;

Expression (oral and written)

- (a) Grammar and mechanics;
- (b) Usage (such as idiomatic expressions, colloquialisms, argots, clichés, jargon and slang);
- (c) Word choice/vocabulary;
- (d) Spelling;
- (e) Punctuation;
- (f) Pronunciation;
- (g) Enunciation; and,
- (h) Adherence to stylistic/contextual norms of appropriateness (levels of formality, register and situation).

2. describe the process of communication;

Process of Communication

- (a) Identifying the elements in the process (sender/encoder, message, channel/medium, receiver/decoder, feedback).
- (b) Describing the process (conceptualising, encoding, selecting channels/mediums, transmitting the message, decoding, interpreting, feedback).

3. explain the factors that intentionally or unintentionally influence audience reception in the communication process;

Factors include: miscommunication; misinformation, noise (semantic or physical, internal or external); bias; misinterpretation; fallacies of reasoning (hasty generalization, false analogy, faulty causation or post hoc, begging the question, red herring, strawman, either/or fallacy); gender-biased language; cultural differences and age differences.

MODULE 3: SPEAKING AND WRITING (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

Students should be able to:

4. explain the factors that communicators may deliberately use to influence audience response;
5. assess the functions of linguistic, paralinguistic and non-verbal features of communication;

CONTENT

Factors include: misinformation, disinformation, propaganda and fake news, fallacies of reasoning, conspiracy theories, false flag, deepfake, big lie, gaslighting.

Linguistic, Paralinguistic and Non-Verbal Communication

(a) Linguistic:

- (i) use of speech sounds/phonemes;*
- (ii) use of words/morphemes;*
- (iii) use of phrases/sentences; and,*
- (iv) use of word/sentence meanings.*

(b) Paralinguistic:

- use of voice (vocalics) – pitch, volume, intonation, tone of voice, rate of speech and pauses.*

(c) Non-Verbal Communication:

- (i) use of body language (kinesics) – for example, gestures, movements, haptics, facial expression, posture.*
- (ii) use of space (proxemics).*
- (iii) use of time (chronemics).*
- (iv) use of objects (artefacts).*
- (v) use of senses.*
- (vi) use of Graphics (charts, tables, diagrams, models).*

The forms above may be combined for specific purposes and situations.

MODULE 3: SPEAKING AND WRITING (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

Students should be able to:

6. identify the specific features of verbal and non-verbal communication and appropriate contexts of use;

CONTENT

Functions of Paralinguistic and Non-verbal Communication

- (a) Substituting for words.
- (b) Reinforcing words.
- (c) Regulating how the verbal message is received.
- (d) Contradicting verbal messages.
- (e) Managing impression.
- (f) Establishing relationship.

Contexts of Communication

- (a) Intrapersonal (for example, thinking, solving problems, imagining).

Interpersonal (for example, interviews, conversations, intimate communication).
- (b) Small group (for example, leadership meetings, role-taking, goal-setting).

Organisational (for example, business, government, educational purposes).
- (c) Academic (for example, essay, research paper).
- (d) Public (for example, speeches, debates).
- (e) Intercultural (for example, communicating across social sub-groups, in tour guiding).

MODULE 3: SPEAKING AND WRITING (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

CONTENT

Students should be able to:

- | | |
|--|---|
| 7. describe the processes involved in speaking and writing; | Prewriting (brainstorming, concept mapping, clustering, outlining, looping), researching, drafting, revising, editing and proofreading, presentation/publication. |
| 8. manipulate linguistic, para-linguistic and non-verbal elements and modes of speech, appropriate to specific purposes and audiences; | Proxemics, chronemics, kinesics, vocalics, artefacts. |
| 9. describe the listening process; | Definition of listening.

The listening process (receiving, understanding, evaluating, remembering, responding).

Problems/Factors affecting listening such as distractions: internal and external noise, lack of interest, personal biases. |
| 10. explain the functions of different types of listening; | Functions of the types of Listening:

(a) Comprehensive (listening to understand a message).

(b) Appreciative (listening for pleasure and entertainment).

(c) Empathic (listening as a means of moral support).

(d) Empathic (listening as a means of moral support).

(e) Critical (listening with a view to evaluating content and form of a message). |
| 11. employ appropriate rhetorical and promotional/persuasive strategies for specific oral and written presentations, products and events; | (a) Speaking:

(i) conversation; and,

(ii) short expository, persuasive and argumentative speeches. |

MODULE 3: SPEAKING AND WRITING (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

Students should be able to:

CONTENT

- (b) Speaking:
 - (i) conversation; and,
 - (ii) short expository, persuasive and argumentative speeches.
- (c) Writing:
 - (i) reflective (for example, journals/diaries); and,
 - (ii) academic essays (for example, argument, exposition, persuasion).
- (d) Rhetorical appeals for the purpose of persuasion:
 - (i) Logos (appeal to reason);
 - (ii) Pathos (appeal to emotions);
 - (iii) Ethos (appeal to credibility); and,
 - (iv) Kairos (appeal to timeliness).
- (e) Promotional/persuasive strategies definition.
- (f) Categories:
 - (i) face-to-face interaction;
 - (ii) electronic and digital media;
 - (iii) printed material;

MODULE 3: SPEAKING AND WRITING (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

CONTENT

Students should be able to:

- (iv) oral presentations;
- (v) artefacts;
- (vi) promotional events; and,
- (vii) testimonials.

12. use a standard variety of English to present on different topics, using appropriate linguistic, paralinguistic and non-verbal communication cues;

Modes of Delivery

- (a) Extemporaneous.
- (b) Impromptu.
- (c) Memorised.
- (d) Manuscript delivery (read).

13. use appropriate organising and formatting strategies in producing specific types of oral and written communication;

Organising and Formatting Strategies (oral and written)

- (a) Introductions and conclusions.
- (b) Focus and emphasis (that is, defining scope; streamlining; placing and keeping central ideas in the foreground; and highlighting).
- (c) Logical linkages (linkages within and between paragraphs, for example, the use of transition/connective words or phrases such as 'although', 'therefore', and 'however', 'as a consequence of', 'on the other hand'; and variation of sentence structure to further achieve coherence).
- (d) Formatting (selecting and using particular styles of arrangement correctly, for example, appropriate headings and sequences of headings).

MODULE 3: SPEAKING AND WRITING (cont'd)

SPECIFIC OBJECTIVES

CONTENT

Students should be able to:

14. evaluate communication according to set criteria;

Criteria: Conceptualisation, intention, audience awareness, encoding, context, norms and forms of interaction, coherence, mechanics and depth.

Revising and editing drafts (via conferencing, peer-evaluation, self-evaluation).

15. describe the ways in which information and communication technologies can impact the processes of speaking and writing; and,

Impact of Information and Communications Technologies

Make information from different types of sources easily accessible, for editing, revising, producing and disseminating.

Easy facilitation of plagiarism; overload of information; no critical engagement with material, encourage intellectual indolence, intellectual apathy.

16. use appropriate technologies to create customised content.

Technologies include computer, tablet, word processor, smart phone, digital camera.

Content includes presentation, manuscript, portfolio, artefacts.

MODULE 3: SPEAKING AND WRITING (cont'd)

Suggested Teaching and Learning Activities

To facilitate students' attainment of the objectives in Module 3, teachers are advised to engage students in the following teaching and learning activities.

Teachers should stress that the written product, like any other, must go through a process leading to completion, and students must be able to identify the tools that forge successful written communication. Teachers should show students how to use the process approach to writing as illustrated by the following activities.

Prewriting

1. Have students keep journal entries (electronically or in a notebook) where they record thoughts, observations and experiences. These can serve as starting points or ideas for more extended writing.
2. Do brainstorming as an oral class activity where students pick a topic and try to exhaust it by saying everything that comes to mind. The next step is to try to arrange the ideas logically and connect them to the topic. Students can work in groups and create different combinations of ideas, which would give different perspectives on the topic.
3. Use clustering or semantic mapping to help students organise ideas in useful patterns for later drafting. Students can create any physical design for their maps and present them on charts to their small group or class. They can challenge each other to defend the connections made.
4. Have students choose a broad topic and examine its treatment in two different publications or broadcasts. Ask them to consider audience and purpose for each presentation. Have them narrow the topic and write an appropriate thesis statement.

Writing and Revising

5. Have students select a topic and try to create as many different introductory sentences as possible. They may discuss the type of sentences and the level of interest, as well as practise rephrasing vague sentences.
6. Have students practise uninterrupted, sustained writing for a specified time from their pre-writing notes. They should not pause to consider grammar, usage or mechanics at this point.
7. Help students develop checklists that they can use with peers or by themselves to evaluate the content, organisation and language of the first draft. Let them choose partners or groups to discuss their writing. Students must be instructed to concentrate on both strengths and weaknesses. At this point students must concentrate on fluency and elegance of writing.

Editing and Proofreading

8. Have students form editing groups where they can use checklists to check grammar and mechanics in each other's writing. Use the more knowledgeable other (MKO) approach to have students coach each other in addressing problematic areas. Encourage students to research spelling and grammatical rules themselves and discuss with peers.

MODULE 3: SPEAKING AND WRITING (cont'd)

Suggested Teaching and Learning Activities

Practice in Writing

9. Have students do practical projects like class or group magazines to help develop their writing skills. Groups can work on different collections, for example, short stories, anecdotes, inspirational pieces, and poems.
10. Have students share their written pieces orally. Some class time can be allocated to daily reading, where students read from their completed pieces of whatever genre. At this point the audience is required to simply listen and respond appreciatively. It is important that teachers write also. Sharing your own writing with students is motivational to them and lends itself to the workshop atmosphere, which should prevail in the writing classroom.
11. Create opportunities for students to publish their work at school, in local newspapers, online blogs and elsewhere. Have students use their editing and proofreading skills to refine materials for publication.

Speaking

12. Have students collaborate to design and produce short publications, either electronically or physically, that integrate both written and audio-visual material for a monthly Newsletter that is managed exclusively by the students with supervision and oversight provided by the teacher.
13. Have students create individual or class podcasts or vodcasts on topics that are of interest to them. Have students go through the full process of pre-writing, writing, and revising, editing and proofreading as they prepare the scripts for the podcasts/vodcasts.
14. Engage students in activities such as 'What's on my mind' where students are randomly selected to share on social issues that are of concern to them. Students are to speak extemporaneously on the topic for at least 3 minutes.
15. Engage students in debates and panel discussions on various current affairs issues.
16. Separate the class into two teams. Students are given a word to describe to their teammates, in addition to a list of words that they cannot use in their description. Each student should have two to three minutes to see how many words their teammates can guess.
17. Give students a random topic and a random word that is unrelated to the topic. The students must hide the word in a speech about the topic—they are trying to make sure the other students cannot guess the secret word. The other students should listen carefully to the speech and attempt to guess the secret word.
18. Use choral speaking activities to allow students to concentrate on the speech skills (articulation, modulation, enunciation). Students can select their own poems for choral arrangements and present them in groups. Dub, rap or extemporaneous rhythms can be explored. Make audio recordings of the activity and have students evaluate themselves.

80%

Written Papers – 4 hours

Paper 01 (1 hour 30 minutes)	Forty-five compulsory multiple-choice items.	30%
Paper 02 (2 hours 30 minutes)	Three compulsory questions requiring more depth of understanding than questions in Paper 01.	50%

SCHOOL-BASED ASSESSMENT

20%

Paper 031

A portfolio on a theme selected by the candidate and approved by the teacher.

Paper 032

(2 hours 15 minutes)

Private candidates are required to write Paper 032, an Alternative Paper to the School-Based Assessment Paper. The details are on page 53.

MODERATION OF THE SCHOOL-BASED ASSESSMENT

School-Based Assessment Record Sheets are available online via the CXC®'s website www.cxc.org

All School-Based Assessment Record of marks must be submitted online using the SBA data capture module of the Online Registration System (ORS). A sample of assignments will be requested by CXC® for moderation purposes. These assignments will be reassessed by CXC® Examiners who moderate the School-Based Assessment. Teachers' marks may be adjusted as a result of moderation. The Examiners' comments will be sent to schools. All samples must be delivered to the specified marking venues by the stipulated deadlines.

Copies of the students' assignment that are not submitted must be retained by the school until three months after publication by CXC® of the examination results.

ASSESSMENT DETAILS

Paper 01 (1 hour 30 minutes – 30% of Total Assessment)

1. Number of Questions

This paper consists of forty-five (45) compulsory multiple-choice items based on the syllabus. There are fifteen (15) items on each Module.

2. Syllabus Coverage

This paper tests candidates' knowledge across the breadth of the syllabus.

3. Question Type

Each multiple-choice item will test either Comprehension or Language Awareness and Use. Items will be presented using words or illustrations, or a combination of words and illustrations, as stimulus material. For the listening comprehension items, candidates will be given a processing time of 5 minutes to read the questions before the passage is read or played. After the first reading of the passage by the examiner, candidates will be given 2 minutes to respond before the passage is read/played a final time.

4. Mark Allocation

One mark will be assigned to each item.

The maximum number of marks of 45, available for this paper, will be weighted to 90.

This paper contributes 30% towards the final assessment.

Paper 02 (2 hours 30 minutes – 50 per cent of Total Assessment)

1. Number of Questions

This paper consists of three compulsory questions, one on each of the Modules in the syllabus.

2. Syllabus Coverage

This paper requires more depth of understanding than questions in Paper 01.

3. Question Type

Questions may be presented using words or illustrations, or a combination of words and illustrations.

Questions 1 and 2 require the candidate to respond in the form of an essay. Question 3 requires the candidate to select an appropriate presentation.

4. Mark Allocation

This paper is worth 75 (by 2) marks and contributes 50 per cent towards the final assessment. Each question contributes 25 (by 2) marks or about 16.7 per cent towards the final assessment.

5. Award of Marks

Marks are awarded for content, organisation and expression.

SCHOOL-BASED ASSESSMENT (20 per cent of Total Assessment)

School-Based Assessment is an integral part of student assessment in the course covered by this syllabus. It is intended to assist students in acquiring certain knowledge, skills and attitudes that are associated with the subject. The activities for the School-Based Assessment are linked to the syllabus and should form part of the learning activities to enable the student to achieve the objectives of the syllabus. Students are encouraged to work in groups.

During the course of study for the subject, students obtain marks for the competence they develop and demonstrate in undertaking their School-Based Assessment assignments. These marks contribute to the final marks and grades that are awarded to students for their performance in the examination.

The guidelines provided in this syllabus for selecting appropriate tasks are intended to assist teachers and students in selecting assignments that are valid for the purpose of School-Based Assessment. The guidelines provided for the assessment of these assignments are intended to assist teachers in awarding marks that are reliable estimates of the achievement of students in the School-Based Assessment component of the course. In order to ensure that the scores awarded by teachers are not out of line with the CXC[®] standards, the Council undertakes the moderation of a sample of the School-Based Assessment assignments marked by each teacher.

School-Based Assessment provides an opportunity to individualise a part of the curriculum to meet the needs of students. It facilitates feedback to them at various stages of the experience. This helps to build their self-confidence as they proceed with their studies. School-Based Assessment also facilitates the development of the critical skills and abilities emphasised by this CAPE[®] subject and enhances the validity of the examination on which candidate performance is reported. School-Based Assessment therefore makes a significant and unique contribution to both the development of relevant skills and the testing and rewarding of students for the development of those skills.

The Caribbean Examinations Council seeks to ensure that the School-Based Assessment scores are valid and reliable estimates of accomplishment. The guidelines provided in this syllabus are intended to assist in doing so.

School-Based Assessment – Paper 031

PORTFOLIO

Each candidate will compile a portfolio on a theme selected by the candidate and approved by the teacher. The portfolio should be internally coherent and be organised under five sections as follows:

1. General Introduction (12 marks)

This section should be no more than 150 words. It should relate to the other four sections, identifying the theme selected and the purpose of selecting it and showing how it relates to the candidate's academic, work-related and personal interests.

2. Exposition (14 marks)

This section of the portfolio will be orally presented and examined. The duration should be no more than 10 minutes per candidate. Topics chosen in this section should be current. A candidate should collect at least two pieces of related information on the selected topic.

A candidate's presentation should be well organised and effectively delivered, and should feature:

- (a) a discussion of the issues raised and the challenges experienced in exploring the selected topic; and,
- (b) an evaluation of the effect of source, context and medium (or channel) on the reliability and validity of information gathered. (Refer to Module 1).

Candidates may bring to the examination room a single cue card, 4" by 6", with headings (and nothing else) related to their presentation. Teachers must ensure that each candidate's card is free of additional information.

3. Creative Piece (10 marks)

A candidate will create ONE sample of original work which should not exceed 800 words. The sample created should cover ONE literary genre. Please note that the sample created must relate to the theme selected.

Preface (4 marks)

For this sample, candidates should write a preface of no more than 75 words, specifying:

- (a) the purpose;
- (b) the intended audience; and,
- (c) the context of communication.

4. Analysis (18 marks)

The analysis in this section should not exceed 425 words. Candidates must analyse the sample in the Creative Piece. The analysis should address any TWO of the following:

- (a) registers;
- (b) dialectal variation;
- (c) attitudes to language; and,
- (d) communicative behaviours.

5. Conclusion (2 marks)

The conclusion should provide a summary of the benefits of doing the portfolio and should not exceed 50 words.

NB: Candidates who exceed the word limit for the School-Based Assessment should be penalized by a deduction of 2 marks from the overall score.

CONCLUSION (50 words)

(2 MARKS)

- Excellent explanation of the benefits of completing the portfolio 2 marks
- Adequate explanation of the benefits of completing the portfolio 1 mark
- Conclusion is missing 0 mark

NB: Candidates who exceed the word limit for the School-Based Assessment should be penalized by a deduction of 2 marks from the overall score.

◆ REGULATIONS FOR PRIVATE CANDIDATES

Candidates who are registered privately will be required to sit Paper 01, Paper 02 and Paper 032. Paper 032 will test the candidate's acquisition of the skills in the same areas of the syllabus identified for the School-Based Assessment. It should be noted that private candidates will not be required to submit a portfolio.

Paper 032 (2 hours 15 minutes)

1. Composition of Paper

The paper is based on the topic and the intended audience for the specified year as indicated in the table below.

YEAR	TOPIC	INTENDED AUDIENCE
2025	Climate change	Teenagers
2026	Natural disasters	Homeowners
2027	Non-communicable diseases in children	Parents
2028	Single parenthood	Teenagers
2029	Mental health challenges	Community groups
2030	Cyberbullying	Parents
2031	The increase in street children	Ministry of Youth
2032	Autism	Teachers
2033	The challenges of having acne	Teenagers

2. Number of Questions

This Paper consists of three compulsory questions, covering the three Modules and based on a central stimulus.

This Paper tests skills similar to those listed in the School-Based Assessment (Paper 031).

3. Question Type

The questions will require the candidate to respond in the form of an essay, structured response or any other form dictated by the type of creative piece.

The Response may either be a creative piece (for example, poetry, drama, prose fiction) OR an expository piece (for example, journalistic piece, journal entry, essay).

In a paragraph of no more than 50-100 words candidates should justify the creative or expository piece by commenting on:

- The purpose
- Intended audience
- The context of communication

Candidates may bring to the examination room a single cue card, 4" by 6", with no more than 10 points (and nothing else) related to the topic of their Response.

4. Mark Allocation

This paper is worth 60 marks and contributes 20 per cent towards the final assessment.

5. Award of Marks

Marks are awarded for content, organisation and expression.

◆ REGULATIONS FOR RESIT CANDIDATES

Resit candidates must complete Papers 01 and 02 of the examination for the year for which they reregister.

CAPE® candidates may reuse any moderated SBA score within a two-year period. In order to assist candidates in making decisions about whether or not to reuse a moderated SBA score, the Council will continue to indicate on the preliminary results if a candidate's moderated SBA score is less than 50 per cent in a particular Unit. Candidates reusing SBA scores should register as "Resit candidates" and must provide the previous candidate number when registering.*

Resit candidates may be entered through schools, recognised educational institutions, or the Local Registrar's Office.

◆ ASSESSMENT GRID

The Assessment Grid for the Unit contains marks assigned to papers and Modules, and percentage contributions of each paper to total scores.

Papers	Module 1	Module 2	Module 3	Total Marks	(%)
External Assessment Paper 01 (1 hour 30 minutes)	30 (15 raw)	30 (15 raw)	30 (15 raw)	90 (45 raw)	(30)

◆ GLOSSARY

Module One

channel/medium(n)	The form of the message or the vehicle for sending it (televised, podcast, tele/video-conferencing, e-books, e-readers); also referred to as medium. The plural form of 'medium' used in this syllabus is 'mediums' to differentiate it from 'media' as used in mass media).
corroboration	Evidence which offers additional support or confirmation of a claim, finding or conclusion that is supported by initial evidence. Corroboration adds to the validity and credibility of a claim or conclusion especially if the corroborative evidence is from an expert or authority source.
data (n)	Information that is used as a basis for calculating, reasoning, or making decisions.
database (n)	A collection of information (data) that is organised in, for example, a computer to enable rapid search and retrieval.
digital media	A form of media that uses electronic devices for distribution. This form of media can be created, viewed, modified, and distributed via electronic devices. Digital media is commonly used software, video games, videos, websites, social media, and advertising that can be assessed online.
effluent reading (adj)	Reading for information.
fallacy (n)	An error in reasoning or logic. More than a dozen common logical fallacies can readily be identified. A well-known fallacy is the bandwagon appeal, as in: Dedicated professional people all use product X, so shouldn't you do so too?
genre (n)	A category of literature or art.
language techniques	refer to any literary device which a writer or speaker may use to help place emphasis on aspects of his or her message to make it more memorable in the process of communicating a message and achieving his or her purpose.
media (n)	For example, press, print, radio, TV and Internet news, entertainment sources. Also referred to as mass media.
medium/channel (n)	See channel.
organisational strategies	Refer to ways in which a writer or speaker may order, arrange, sequence, group, and present his or her content to an audience with the aim to enhance/ emphasise the effectiveness of his or her message and make it (main points, supporting details and thesis) more recognisable.
primary source (n)	An article or other document written by the actual researcher of a study or creator of a theory. Journals are great sources of articles that are primary sources. Historical documents, literary works, letters, and reports are also examples of primary sources.

reliability (n)	The level to which an experiment, test or procedure gives the same results when done again and again.
resource (n)	A physical, human, or virtual tool that assists one. In research, reliable websites can be considered resources, just as journals, reports, audio/video recordings are considered resources. Typically, a resource is a source of information.
search engine (n)	A tool that assists in sifting through databases to identify sources that fit specific criteria. For example, Google and Yahoo are popular search engines; the user may be directed to either full articles or to databases that contain information but that require a password or fee. Many colleges and universities now subscribe to services that allow students direct access to databases such as ProQuest and Ebsco Host; the latter, for example, houses Academic Search Premier and Business Source Premier that provide access to thousands of full text journals, which contain thousands of primary sources.
secondary source (n)	An article, book or other document written by someone who did not actually do the research or formulate the opinions or theories but who has pulled together relevant sources. Textbooks are common examples.
validity (n)	The extent to which a test, experiment, or procedure measures what it aims to measure.

Module Two

Caribbean Standard English (CSE) (n)	The standardised variety of mutually intelligible English that is used in the Caribbean for educational, business and other official purposes.
Caribbean Creole (n)	A language with a lexical base primarily from a European language but with a grammar that is non-European in many respects. Caribbean English Creoles (CEC) therefore have English as their lexical base. An example of a Creole with a French lexical base is St Lucian Kwéyòl. The grammars of these Creoles are in some respects patterned on their West African sources. An example is the predicative use of adjectives, as in 'mi siki' 'mwen malad'.
code-switch (v)	Move between varieties of language within a single utterance or in a conversation, for example, I went late to the market and mi no get no food. In this utterance, the speaker moves from Standard English I went to Creole mi no get no food.
colloquial aphesis	The gradual loss of an unstressed vowel at the beginning of a word – spector for inspector; ductor for conductor; prentice for apprentice; cause/causen for because; gainst for against
Communicative behaviour	Any non-verbal expression, nuance or action that communicates one's perspectives, emotions, beliefs, lifestyle and/or personhood.

Creole (n)	A native language which has its beginnings in situations of contact where groups of people who did not share a common language were forced to communicate with each other.
Creole-influenced vernacular (n)	A form of social communication that is in routine, widespread use in certain communities, for example, Barbados, and that is influenced by some features of a Creole.
dialect (n)	A regional or social variety of a language, usually noticeable through features of vocabulary and pronunciation and, to a lesser extent, grammar. Within English, several regional dialects can be identified, such as British English, American English, Nigerian English, Australian English and Caribbean English. Jamaican, Bajan, Belize Kriol and Trinidadian Creole are dialects of Caribbean Creole. Within Caribbean territories, there is further dialectal variation.
digital identifier	Is any digital representation (such as name, icon, picture, symbol) invented to uniquely identify a person or entity.
English-based Creole	An English-lexified language that has generally emerged out of historical trauma, involving a dominant English minority and an oppressed majority whose initial mother tongue contributes significantly to the morphosyntactic construct of that language.
epenthesis	Addition of one or more sounds in a word – Simith for Smith; sumall for Small, sinake for snake.
language (n)	A systematic way of communicating feelings or idea in words and signs. A language subsumes dialects and idiolects (personal ways of speaking a dialect) and may be designated as international, official, national. It may also be placed in a linguistic family or group. For example, French, Italian and Spanish belong to the Romance family of languages.
idiomatic expression (n)	An idiomatic expression is a saying or phrase with a figurative rather than a literal meaning, which cannot be worked out from the meaning of the component words. Examples of idiomatic expressions in English are rain cats and dogs, kick the bucket, not my cup of tea. Idiomatic expressions in Caribbean Creole include to kiss/suck teeth, to cut your eye (at someone).
International language (n)	(Also referred to as global language.) A language that serves as a lingua franca for peoples whose native languages are different. Of the world's 6,000 or so known languages, three (English, Spanish and French) are generally considered as international languages. For example, at the Olympics, which generally enjoys the participation of many countries, hundreds of different languages are informally spoken, but all formal communication generally occurs in these three international languages: English, Spanish and French, apart from the official language of the host country.

metathesis	Transportation of sounds or letters in words – aks for ask; flim for film; cripsey for crispy.
mother tongue/ language	The language a person first learns to speak at home during childhood. The language of the family in which you grow up.
official language (n)	A language used in official situations for legal, educational, government, and other formal communication purposes. Some countries recognise two or more official languages. For example, Canada recognises English and French, India recognises English and Hindi, and Haiti, Haitian Creole and French.
pre-verbal particle marker (n)	A word that systematically comes before a verb and modifies the latter's meaning by specifying the general time and nature of its action. For example, in the phrase does teach, does is a pre-verbal particle that specifies present time, emphasis and regularity of occurrence in the meaning of the verb in most Caribbean English Creoles.
register (n)	The range of types of language choices from highly formal and stylised to intimate, available for use.
standard language (n)	The dialect of a language that is generally used for education and other formal or official purposes. It is generally held to be the most prestigious of the dialects of a language.
style (n)	A person's distinctive way of speaking or writing that arises from factors such as pronunciation, word choice and sentence structure.
vernacular (n)	The language variety of a community or country that is in routine widespread use in social interaction.

Module Three

Bias	An unfair preference for or against an idea, person, place or thing despite evidence to the contrary.
big lie	A gross distortion or misrepresentation of the facts, especially when used as a propaganda device by a politician or official body.
culture (n)	A way of life characteristic of a group of people. It includes their language, food, dress, and lifestyles, is socially acquired and evolves slowly across generations.
Deepfake	A video of a person in which their face or body has been digitally altered so that they appear to be someone else, typically used maliciously or to spread false information.
false flag	A hostile or harmful action (such as an attack) that is designed to look like it was perpetrated by someone other than the person or group responsible for it.
Fact	A thing that can be proven to be true or false.

gender sensitive language	Using written or spoken language in a manner that addresses all genders or identities in an equally visible and appreciative manner. In English, such use avoids bias towards a particular sex or social gender by use of nouns that are not gender-specific to refer to roles or professions.
Intercultural communication	The type of communication that takes place between or across cultures or sub-groups.
Interpersonal communication	The type of communication that takes place between two or more people.
language techniques	This refers to any literary device which a writer or speaker may use to help place emphasis on aspects of his message to make it more memorable in the process of communicating a message and achieving his or her purpose.

◆ GLOSSARY OF BEHAVIOURAL VERBS USED IN THE COMMUNICATION STUDIES EXAMINATIONS

WORD	TASK
Analyse / Write an analysis of	Explain or interpret information by examining its constitution or structure methodically as directed. An analysis may involve identifying matters such as dialectal varieties, attitudes to language, and authorial tone. For example: In an essay of no more than 300 words, write an analysis of the extract taking into consideration: 1. dialectal variation; 2. attitudes to language; and, 3. communicative behaviours.
Comment	Give your views or reaction. This verb is typically used in a question that seeks the candidate's views on the effectiveness of a literary or language device. For example: Choose ONE of the metaphors and comment on its effectiveness.
Compose	Make up, develop, form or create. For example: Compose FOUR questions that should be included in the questionnaire.
Compare and contrast	Express similarities and differences between at least two entities. 'Compare' refers to the similarities, while 'contrast' refers the differences. An alternative expression is 'State/Discuss similarities and differences'. For example: 1. Compare and contrast Tiger's speech and Urmilla's. 2. Discuss similarities and differences between Tiger's speech and Urmilla's.

Define	State precisely the meaning, nature or scope of (often with an illustration). This verb is usually used in relation to words/phrases. For example: Define the term “dialect”.
Describe	Provide an account of something or an issue in words, including its significant characteristics or traits. For example: Describe how history has influenced the language situation in a named territory you have studied.
Discuss	Provide an extended answer that explores related concepts and issues, using detailed examples but not necessarily drawing a conclusion. For example: In an essay of no more than 500 words, discuss the following: 1. The dialectal variation in the passage; and, 2. How film would effectively capture the communicative behaviours in this extract.
Explain	Make something (usually an idea, situation or problem clear by describing it in more detail or giving more information on it. For example: Two students are overheard discussing sources to be used for the research. Paul: I say we should forget that article from “The Gazette” and concentrate instead on parents as a source. Beryl: No way! Explain how EACH of the sources mentioned in the dialogue above could be used in the research.
Evaluate	Judge or determine the value of material (usually information and its sources) for a given purpose. For example: Evaluate the reliability of the information.

Give /State	Provide (usually short, concise answers). For example: 1. Give TWO reasons for your answers. 2. State the writer's main point in no more than 30 words.
Identify	Extract the relevant information from a stimulus without explanation. For example: 1. (a): Identify FOUR features of non – verbal communication that a politician might use in a debate in parliament.
Justify	Give an explanation (for a response or situation). For example: 1. (b): Justify one of the features in your answer in 1 (a) above.
Suggest	To provide, to give, or to put forward. For example: Suggest THREE non-verbal cues that students might use to make an overseas student feel welcome.

Paper 01

EXAMINER'S SCRIPT

ITEMS 1–7

1. Say to the candidates:

Items 1–7 constitute Section A of this paper. They are based on a monologue, which I will read to you. You will be given five minutes to read the items before you listen to the monologue. I will read the monologue to you twice.

You are required to listen carefully to the monologue before answering the items. You may make notes while you listen to the reading. You must NOT begin to answer the items until you are told to do so.

You are required to respond to the items on your answer sheet by selecting the correct option from the four options lettered A–D.

2. Say to the candidates:

You now have five minutes to read through Items 1–7.

3. Five minutes later, say to the candidates:

Now listen carefully while I read this monologue twice. Remember, you may make notes as I read.

GO ON TO THE NEXT PAGE

4. Read the following monologue twice at normal reading pace. (DO NOT dictate the monologue for candidates to write.)

La Soufrière

- I wake up this morning.
And not a soul not here.
No one is here.
Sister and all dem children and dog and cat vanish.
5 Like La Soufrière come and tek dem up and vaporize them.
But no evidence of bodies here.
No piles of bones or ashes here.
All night I could hear the sound of the volcano whirring like supersonic jets.
10 Like a dumper truck off-loading a ton of stone.
Like, like at first I had one eye open, and then I fall asleep.
The dead couldn't wake me.
What is going on here?
What happen?
I wake up and find myself alone with La Soufrière.

Adapted from Yvonne Weekes, "La Soufrière". Voices: Monologues & Dramatic Text for Caribbean Actors. Ed. Yvonne Weekes. House of Nehesi P, 2022, pp. 84–90.

5. After you have read the monologue the first time, pause for 2 minutes and then say to the candidates:

I shall now read the monologue a second time.

6. After you have read the monologue a second time, pause for a few seconds and then say to the candidates:

You have 90 minutes to answer all the items on Paper 01. When you are finished answering those items which are based on this monologue, go straight to Section B and answer Items 8 to 45. Do not wait for any further instructions. The invigilator will tell you when the last 15 minutes are left.

7. Quietly invite the invigilator to take over the examination process.

Instructions to the Invigilator

8. Seventy-five minutes later, tell candidates that they have 15 minutes left.
9. Fifteen minutes later, at the end of the allotted 90 minutes, collect all papers and dismiss the candidates.

COMMUNICATION STUDIES

Paper 01

1 hour 30 minutes

READ THE FOLLOWING INSTRUCTIONS CAREFULLY.

1. This test consists of 45 items divided into two sections, A and B.
2. Section A is based on a communication extract and consists of seven questions. The extract, which is NOT included in the question booklet, will be read to you twice. You will be allowed five minutes to look at the questions before the extract is read to you.
3. Section B consists of 38 questions. Answer each question based on the information given.
4. In addition to the test booklet, you should have an answer sheet.
5. Each item in this test has four suggested answers lettered (A), (B), (C), (D). Read each item you are about to answer and decide which choice is best.
6. On your answer sheet, find the number which corresponds to your item and shade the space having the same letter as the answer you have chosen. Look at the sample item below.

Sample Item

Which of the following is an advantage of the questionnaire as a data collection method?

- (A) Ease of administration
- (B) Immediacy of feedback
- (C) Openness of discussion
- (D) Opportunity for clarification

Sample Answer

The best answer to this item is “Ease of administration”, so (A) has been shaded.

7. If you want to change your answer, erase it completely before you fill in your new choice.
8. When you are told to begin, turn the page and work as quickly and as carefully as you can. If you cannot answer an item, go on to the next one. You may return to that item later.

DO NOT TURN THIS PAGE UNTIL YOU ARE TOLD TO DO SO.

READ THE FOLLOWING INSTRUCTIONS CAREFULLY.

1. This paper consists of THREE questions.
2. Answer ALL questions.
3. Write your answers in the spaces provided in this booklet.
4. Do NOT write in the margins.
5. You are advised to take some time to read through the paper and plan your answers.
6. If you need to rewrite any answer and there is not enough space to do so on the original page, you must use the extra lined page(s) provided at the back of this booklet.
Remember to draw a line through your original answer.
7. If you use the extra page(s), you MUST write the question number clearly in the box provided at the top of the extra page(s) and, where relevant, include the question part beside the answer.

DO NOT TURN THIS PAGE UNTIL YOU ARE TOLD TO DO SO.

SECTION A

MODULE 1 – GATHERING AND PROCESSING INFORMATION

1. Read the extract below carefully and then answer the question that follows.

Is Beauty Fair?

Several African countries, including Rwanda and Ghana, recently banned the use of skin bleaching products because they are dangerous. Although safer alternatives exist, many of the bleaching and lightening products used in Africa contain harmful ingredients such as mercury and high-dose steroids.

- 5 These ingredients can cause kidney failure and other illnesses, making skin bleaching a public health problem that governments need to address. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), 77% of women in Nigeria use skin lightening products, the world's highest percentage.

However, many healthcare problems in Nigeria and across Africa are not just clinical, they are economical and social.

- 10 Banning bleaching products will not completely solve the problem of unsafe skin bleaching unless other measures are also put in place. African women don't bleach their skin simply because they are vain. They lighten their skin because fair skin is too often seen as more attractive and provides them with an economic advantage.

- 15 Last year, Matthew Knowles, father of singer, Beyoncé Knowles-Carter, one of the world's most successful entertainers, addressed this issue in a radio interview. He believes that his daughter is more accepted in the entertainment industry because of her light skin and goes on to point out that "virtually no black popstars with darker skin had broken through in the past decade." In his book, Knowles wrote that even his mother disapproved of him having dark-skinned girlfriends.

- 20 Edward Ademolu, a PhD researcher at the UK's University of Manchester, defines "colorism" as "an intra-racial complexion-based hierarchy that often affords societal, cultural, economic privileges and favoritism towards lighter-skinned people and discrimination against those with darker complexions". This is evident in many parts of Africa, where light-skinned women are considered more beautiful and therefore more likely to succeed in some fields such as in the modeling and movie industries. Whiteness is something that many Africans aspire to, and light skin still has social capital.

GO ON TO THE NEXT PAGE

- 25 However, the better job opportunities and elevated status that lighter skin may bring, paint a different picture — a picture of African women making an entirely rational, calculated, business-like decision. This is the reason I believe that if we ban these products, it will not completely solve the problem. We must open up a conversation around skin color and beauty and the media, particularly the fashion media, which must feature other types of beauty beyond the Western ideal, to end this color bias. It is a major part of tackling what has become a significant public health problem. Without sustained work
- 30 to change this perception we will only be treating the symptoms, but never actually curing the disease.

SOURCE: Ola Brown (2019). "Banning skin bleaching products won't work as long as fair skin is linked with beauty and success". Retrieved from <https://edition.cnn.com/2019/01/15/health/banning-bleaching-products-in-africa/index.html>

MODULE 3 – SPEAKING AND WRITING

3. Read the scenario below carefully and then answer the questions that follow.

Model UN (MUN) is a popular activity for those interested in learning more about how the United Nations (UN) operates. Hundreds of thousands of students worldwide at all educational levels take part every year either online or in person. Many of today’s leaders in law, government, business and the arts — including at the UN itself — participated in Model UN as students.

You were chosen by your school to head a team of four students attending this international gathering of delegates. As head, your role is to deliver a 10-minute presentation to your school administration on the theme, “The benefits of setting goals”.

In an essay of NO MORE than 300 words, discuss the plan of action that you and your team will undertake as you prepare for this important venture by

- explaining TWO message points related to logos or pathos appeals that you could use to reach your audience as you speak on the theme of goal setting
- justifying ONE language register and ONE dialectal variety that would be considered appropriate for your audience
- justifying the use of ONE digital media technology that could enhance the delivery of your presentation to school administrators.

Question 1. continued

The writer's purpose is to

- highlight that skin bleaching has various results
- illustrate that fair-skinned women have advantages over dark-skinned women
- explain/convince that the problem will only be solved when the media promotes non-Western types of beauty.
- Discuss TWO organizational strategies OR language techniques OR any combination of both which the writer uses to achieve the purpose.

[4 marks]

Award 2 marks each for correct identification, example and explanation of any two organization strategies or language techniques or combination thereof. [2 + 2 = 4 marks]

Award 1 mark for correct naming of ONE strategy or techniques and example.

Award 1 mark for correct naming of two or more strategies or techniques or combinations thereof, but without example(s) without explanation(s).

Organizational Strategies

- Authoritative Source - World Health Organization (WHO); Matthew Knowles, father of Beyonce and author; Edward Ademolu, PhD researcher at University of Manchester.
 - Used to suggest that the writer's content is well-researched and credible, based on
 - first-person experience
 - scientific evidence derived from an organization (WHO) with an international reputation
 - a research university which has studied the topic
 - scholarship from a PhD expert in the field.
- Documentary Evidence - Matthew Knowles' radio interview and book mentioned in paragraph 4.
 - Used to suggest that this information can be trusted since it comes from a source who relates personal experiences regarding his celebrity daughter.

COMMUNICATION STUDIES
PAPER 020
KEY AND MARK SCHEME

Question 1. continued

- Examples - African countries like Rwanda, Ghana and Nigeria mentioned in paragraphs 1 and 2.
 - Used to convey the idea that the problem of skin bleaching is a serious and pervasive one across Africa.
- Problem and Solution - the solution to the problem of skin bleaching is given in the final paragraph.
 - Used to convey the idea that despite the severity of the problem of skin bleaching, there is an achievable solution if other concepts of beauty are promoted and accepted.
- Testimonial - Matthew Knowles' account of his mother's disapproval of dark-skinned girlfriends.
 - Used to support the writer's claim that colour bias is widespread and to give credibility to Matthew Knowles as a source because he is speaking from personal experience.
- Contrast - safer alternatives contrasted to skin bleaching products with harmful ingredients (paragraph 1)
 - Used to convey that the problem of skin bleaching is so ingrained that females take great risks to achieve lighter complexions; the perceived benefits outweigh the risks.
- Examples - harmful ingredients used for skin bleaching products - mercury and high-dose steroids (paragraph 1)
 - Used to emphasize the dangers involved in the practice of skin bleaching.
- Call to Action - appeal to the audience about how the problem of skin bleaching can be solved (final paragraph).
 - Used to convey the idea that the problem of skin bleaching is solvable if deliberate action is taken; also used to invite the audience to become part of the solution.
- Focus Question in Title - "Is Beauty Fair?"
 - Used to advance the writer's message and invite the audience to consider the drivers of the skin bleaching phenomenon and its solution

COMMUNICATION STUDIES
PAPER 020
KEY AND MARK SCHEME

Question 1. continued

- Cause and Effect - skin bleaching causes health care problems; clinical, economic and social reasons are the drivers for skin bleaching; African women lighten their skins because of perceived attractiveness and social advantage; Beyonce is more acceptable because of her light skin according to Matthew Knowles.
 - Used to convey that the problem of skin bleaching is complex and has multiple causations/drivers/reasons.
- Definition - explanation of "colourism" by Edward Ademolu, University of Manchester.
 - Used to clarify a new/unfamiliar concept for the reader and to offer a premise for his claim that females of darker complexions are discriminated against which drives many to practice skin bleaching.
- Statistical Data - World Health Organization: 77 per cent of Nigerian women use skin bleaching products (paragraph 2)
 - Used to suggest that the evidence/information is well-researched and credible because it is derived from a highly reputable international agency; the pervasiveness of the problem in that country.

Language Techniques

- Pun - "Is Beauty Fair?" (Title - play on the meaning of fair)
 - Used to engage audience interest and fascination in the topic.
- Rhetorical Question in Title - "Is Beauty Fair?"
 - Used to generate reflection interest/ curiosity in the topic by the readers.
- Metaphor - "no black popstar ...has broken through in the past decade" (paragraph 4)
 - Used to emphasize that it is very difficult for dark skinned persons to penetrate the barriers to success in certain fields.

COMMUNICATION STUDIES
PAPER 020
KEY AND MARK SCHEME

Question 1. continued

- Metaphor/pun - "light skin still has social capital" (paragraph 5)
 - Used to highlight the play on the word "capital" which may allude to the financial/economic benefits and opportunities afforded to persons who are light skinned contrasted to those of darker complexions.
- Metaphor - "paint a different picture..." (paragraph 6).
 - Used to suggest that the better job opportunities and elevated status that lighter skin may bring is a completely different reality from those available to persons of darker complexions.
- Metaphor - "a major part of tackling...a significant public health problem" (paragraph 6).
 - Used to convey that skin bleaching is a major health problem that needs to be confronted and brought down/under control by deliberate action.
- Metaphor - "treating the symptom, but never curing the disease" (paragraph 6)
 - Used to to highlight the fact that banning skin bleaching products will not solve the underlying problem that causes people to engage in the practice.

- Evaluate the credibility of the information presented. [2 marks]

Award 1 mark each for a clear explanation of any two of the following reasons given as to whether the information is credible or not. [2 marks]

The information may be considered credible because

- it agrees with what is already known about the causes and consequences of skin bleaching
- sources of information used by the writer, the PhD researcher for University of Manchester, and Matthew Knowles may be considered trustworthy.
- sources of information used by the writer, the PhD researcher for University of Manchester, and Matthew Knowles may be knowledgeable and qualified to give the information that they have provided
- multiple sources of information suggest that the writer's claims in the passage are well-researched and corroborated

COMMUNICATION STUDIES
PAPER 020
KEY AND MARK SCHEME

Question 1. continued

- information from Matthew Knowles is based on personal experience and hence can be trusted or is likely to be true
- information provided by the writer is enough to prove what is being claimed about the problem of skin bleaching
- the writer is a medical doctor and published author who is likely qualified to address the topic of skin bleaching.

The information may be considered less than credible because

- the date of the article and date of the statistics are not provided to help determine the currency of the information
- the author claims that there are safe alternatives to harmful skin bleaching products, but these are not cited.

Question 2.

Write an essay, in no more than 500 words, in which you

- state ONE possible reason each for the teacher's use of TWO language varieties as demonstrated in the extract [4 marks]
- identify, with the use of examples from the excerpt, ONE grammatical feature of the teacher's language used in the dialogue [2 marks]
- identify, with the use of examples from the excerpt, ONE phonological feature of the teacher's language used in the dialogue [2 marks]
- identify and explain ONE challenge that a Creole-speaking student in this class might face in learning Standard English. [2 marks]

Content – 10 Marks

Language variety

- State ONE possible reason each for the teacher's use of TWO language varieties as demonstrated in the extract. [4 Marks]

Award 2 marks EACH for the identification and brief explanation of the TWO language varieties used by the teacher. [2+2 =4]

Award 1 mark for only naming two language varieties without explanation.

- Use of Standard English/Acrolect variety
 - English is the official language and is therefore expected to be used in education.
 - English is typically the language used by teachers in formal classroom discourse.
 - The teacher is attempting to perform as well as possible, thus using "English" for the occasion as she is being observed.
 - Teacher is attempting to model "good English".
 - English is used to "correct" students' non-English pronunciations.
 - It is expected that English should be used to conduct the serious, instructional and pedagogical parts of the class.
 - It is part of the language repertoire available in the speech community of which the teacher is a member.

COMMUNICATION STUDIES
PAPER 020
KEY AND MARK SCHEME

Question 2. continued

• Use of Caribbean English Creole

- Creole is used to stimulate and manage the class as it is the dominant language used by the students in the extract.
- Creole is used to relate to students better and increase their comfort level for maximum participation.
- Creole may be used to accommodate the students from varying geographical and educational backgrounds, as it is the national lingua franca.
- Creole is generally accepted for rebukes, jokes and to create a comedic effect in the classroom.
- The use of Creole by the teacher establishes her Caribbean background and identity.
- It is part of the language repertoire available in the speech community of which the teacher is a member.

Grammatical features

- Identify, with the use of examples from the excerpt, ONE grammatical feature of the teacher's language used in the dialogue. [2 marks]

Award 2 marks each for the identification with relevant example of any ONE of the following grammatical features.

Award no mark for only identifying phonological feature(s) OR for only identifying grammatical features without relevant example(s).

- The use of invariable word order for interrogatives and declaratives. (This is where there is no inversion of auxiliary verbs or no insertion of 'auxiliary/dummy do' in questions, thus making them distinct from statements.)

For example, "Anybody else want to add something to Opal what goes on in di cultural centre?" or "A, you understand what goes on in di cultural centre?" and "You kyan member what O said?"

- The zero copula structure. In English-based Creoles, the null copula is used with adjectival predicates, whereas in English the verb "to be" would be employed.

For example, in the passage the teacher said, "She bright!" demonstrating the zero copula.

COMMUNICATION STUDIES
PAPER 020
KEY AND MARK SCHEME

Question 2. continued

- Double negative construction. In English-based Creoles, multiple negatives are allowed in the same phrase/sentence, which do not cancel out each other.

For example, "Dohn play wid no pencil now" or "Nobody else don't want to add somting..."

- Invariable Pronouns/Object pronouns used in subject positions. In Creole, pronouns are used invariably for nominative, accusative and possessive cases.

For example, "Give he back his pencil."

Subject verb agreement - English Creoles do not have Subject-verb agreement

- In Standard English, third person singular Subjects take verbs with -s.

For example, "Is parties a part of your culture, G?" or "She know what goes on in er village" or "Who want to say somting bout di Kindergarten School?"

Phonological features

- Identify, with the use of examples from the excerpt, ONE phonological feature of the teacher's language used in the dialogue. [2 marks]

Award 2 marks each for the identification with relevant example of any ONE of the following phonological features.

Award no mark for only identifying grammatical features OR only identifying phonological feature(s).

- Dental fricatives. These are sounds produced with the tip of your tongue between your upper and lower teeth; however, in many English-based Creoles, these are generally realized as alveolar stops, that is, sounds produced with your tongue just behind your upper teeth at the alveolar ridge.

For example, "the" pronounced as /di/ and "something" as /somting

- Hypercorrection/deletion

- Hypercorrection: a sound is added to words that would not normally require it

- Over generalization of a rule or process

For example, the teacher in the dialogue sometimes pronounces "her" as "er"

COMMUNICATION STUDIES
PAPER 020
KEY AND MARK SCHEME

- Palatalization/insertion. This is where a semi-vowel is inserted after a consonant.

For example, "girl" pronounced as "gyorl" and "can" as "kyan"

- Reduction in consonant cluster -When a word end with two or more consonants, at least one of the consonants are deleted

For example, "understan" instead of "understand" and "wan" instead of "want".

- Unstressed syllable deletion/Colloquial aphesis - unstressed syllables are frequently not pronounced in many English-based Creoles.

For example, /bout/ is produced by the teacher, instead of "about" and "member" instead of "remember".

- Explain the challenges faced in learning Standard English. [2 Marks]

Award 1 mark for identification and 1 mark for any reasonable explanation for ONE points. [2 marks]

- Prejudice against Creoles and Creole speakers / Negative attitudes and stereotypes - may lead to fear of making mistakes and hence the intimidation/embarrassment of the Creole speaker.
- Confusion caused by similarities and overlaps in the structure and vocabulary of English and English-based Creoles - this may affect their proficiency in the production of Standard English.
- Speakers of Creoles believe they are speaking English because they live in a country where English is an official language - this may affect their proficiency in the production of Standard English.
- Unavailability of sufficient models of English speakers - this may affect their proficiency in the production of Standard English.

Message Points Related to Pathos Appeal

- Goal setting helps to prevent frustration and chaos when persons feel that they are not making progress in life.

Explanation: This message point has pathos appeal as it contains emotive words intended to stir positive emotions towards the benefits of setting goals.

- Persons who set long or short-term goals feel a greater sense of personal satisfaction and fulfilment in life.

Explanation: This message point has pathos appeal as it is likely to inspire or motivate individuals to set goals in their lives.

- Young people who are known to set personal goals are usually thought to be ambitious and make their parents proud.

Explanation: This message point has pathos appeal as it is capable of inspiring feelings of acceptance and pride in young people who practice this behaviour.

- "If you fail to plan, then you plan to fail"

Explanation: This message point has pathos appeal as this aphorism could inspire a fear of failure.

- "Success is not about how many times you fail. It is about sticking to a plan no matter what and coming out triumphant in the end" - Yohan W. Blake (World Class Athlete)

Explanation: This message point has pathos appeal as it is about personal set-backs, failure and disappointment but which ends in ultimate triumph because of a plan. This could serve as motivation and inspiration to everyone.

SECTION A

Instructions: Read the extract below carefully and then answer the questions that follow.

The following public service announcement has been posted in a local newspaper to inform citizens of the rollout of the Ministry of Health's digital Covid-19 vaccination certificates.

- On Monday 3 January, 2022, the Ministry of Health will begin distribution of digital Covid-19 certificates for citizens who have been vaccinated. The cards will display a special quick response (QR) code feature which allows information to be easily validated, thereby reducing the possibility of fraud. To ensure the accuracy of the information on each card, members of the public are asked
- 5 to visit The Ministry of Health's website to correct information on their card by uploading a picture of their national ID and vaccination card. In the event of an emergency or for members of the public who may have difficulty accessing the cards online, persons can visit their nearest health centre to receive a physical copy of the vaccination certificate.

1. (a) Explain TWO challenges a citizen in a rural village is likely to face in receiving this information on the digital vaccination card.

KEY AND MARK SCHEME

SECTION A

Question 1

- (a) Explain TWO challenges a citizen in a rural village is likely to face in receiving the information on the digital vaccination card. [4 marks]

- Citizens may be unable to read and hence, the message in a newspaper would be unavailable to them.
- The formal language register may pose comprehension challenges even for those who are able to read.
- Some rural villages may not be on the distribution route of the newspapers and therefore would not have access to the message printed in newspapers.
- Some Caribbean citizens prefer orature and are more receptive to orally communicated information.
- Some persons might find the cost of the daily newspaper prohibitive.

Award 2 marks each for two complete and clearly explained challenges which the citizens may face in receiving the information.

Award 1 mark for a clear identification of two challenges which are not explained. [2 + 2 = 4 marks]

- (b) Justify TWO appropriate traditional media, other than the printed medium, that may be used for communicating information to citizens in a rural village, regarding the rollout of the digital vaccination card. [4 marks]

- Radio - cheap to own and maintain; its reach covers wide areas whether urban or rural; can reach its audience 24/7; can operate in the background while listener is engaged in other activities; message can be broadcast multiple times per day/week.
- Television - relatively cheap to own and maintain; reception can reach wide areas whether urban or rural; can reach audience 24/7; include both visual and aural stimuli which can make the message more appealing; can operate in the background while listener is engaged in other activities; message can be broadcast multiple times per day/week.
- Film - can be shown to audience on multiple occasions; includes both visual and aural stimuli which can make the message more appealing.

Question 1 cont'd

- Telephone – short messages can be communicated via telephone to those who have this device; cost can be prohibitive hence not ideal to reach large audiences.
- Word of Mouth – can be effective for those who prefer orature; can be quickly used among small groups; message can be distorted as information passes from one person to another; for accuracy, it is best used with another form of media to corroborate information.
- Mobile loudspeaker – can be effective for those who prefer orature; can be quickly used among small groups; message can be accessed wherever the audience is; can suffer from message distortion.

Award 2 marks each for a complete and clear explanation of TWO appropriate traditional media for communicating the information other than the printed medium.

Award 1 mark for only naming TWO appropriate traditional media other than the printed medium but without adequate explanation.

(1 mark for naming 2)

[2 + 2 = 4 marks]

- (c) Comment on ONE local source of information which citizens in a rural village could consult if they have questions about the safety of taking the vaccine. [2 marks]

- Authoritative sources within the community such as teachers, health care workers, Justices of the Peace/Notary Public, religious leaders, political leaders/representatives. These persons are socially aware and informed to share relevant information about the vaccination drive.
- Internet/online searches on government websites where internet access is available. This will provide official/authorized information on the vaccination campaign.
- Testimonials from those who have already taken the vaccines.

Award 2 marks for a satisfactory explanation of ONE local source of information which citizens in a rural village could consult if that have questions about the safety of taking the vaccine.

Award 1 mark for an acceptable identification of a relevant local source of information but without adequate explanation.

Question 2

- (a) Explain TWO reasons why the public service announcement by the Ministry of Health uses the dialectal variety and the language register which it does. [4 marks]

DIALECTAL VARIETY

Standard English/acrolect is used in the message because

- it is the official language variety supported by the government for official communication
- there is the association of seriousness with the use of Standard English/acrolect in messaging the public
- there is the assumption that everybody understands messages in Standard English/acrolect even though they may not speak it.

LANGUAGE REGISTER

A formal language register is used in the message because

- this register is believed to convey the seriousness of the message
- the communication from the government is formal
- the communication from the government is official as opposed to unofficial/casual.

Award 1 mark for correct identification of the use of Standard English dialectal variety and 1 mark for an acceptable explanation of the choice. [2 marks]

Award 1 mark for the correct identification of the use of a formal language register and 1 mark for an acceptable explanation. [2 marks]

Award 1 mark for correct identification of dialectal variety and language register without explanation. [1 mark]

Question 2 cont'd

- (b) Based on the public service announcement, list the TWO MOST important message points which an audience of citizens in a rural village would need to know. [2 marks]

- Distribution of digital Covid-19 vaccination certificate will begin on Monday 3 January 2022.
- Digital Covid-19 vaccination cards will display a quick response (QR) code for easy validation of information.
- Digital Covid-19 vaccination cards will display a quick response (QR) code as a safeguard against fraud.
- To ensure accuracy of information on your digital certificate, visit the Ministry of Health website and upload a picture of your national ID and vaccination card.
- Contact your nearest health centre to collect a hard copy of your vaccination certificate in cases of emergency or no internet access.

Award 1 mark each for two clearly stated message points which the audience would need to know.

- (c) Create a slogan which you could use to encourage support for the Covid-19 vaccination, using ONE literary technique. [4 marks]

POSSIBLE SLOGAN

- "A stick in time, saves lives" - Use of allusion to the proverb "A stitch in time, saves nine" which helps to convey the message that timely and appropriate action will prevent illness and even death.
- "Vaccinations for rubella, chicken pox and polio - why not for Covid-19?" - Use of rhetorical question helps to stir reflection that vaccination saves lives and has been a common feature in our lives since childhood.
- "Don't wait, vaccinate." - Use of rhyme to suggest the urgent need to take action and to make the message to vaccinate more memorable.

Question 2 cont'd

- "Take your breath away! Let it be Verona and not the corona virus!" - Use of pun, rhyme and sex appeal to convince males that being breathless should be metaphorical because of love and not literal because of viral infection.

Any other relevant slogan or tag line accompanied by an explanation of the related use of any literary technique(s).

Award 1 mark for a relevant slogan which you could use to encourage support for the Covid-19 vaccination, 1 mark for inclusion of a literary technique(s) used to appeal to the audience and 2 marks for the explanation of the technique(s) used which is linked to the issue of vaccination.

Award 1 mark for an explanation which is unclear or incomplete.
